MARKET RULED BY WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Farmers Are Again Buying and Western Stocks in Store Are Being Depleted.

The local market Saturday both wheat and corn declined early under pressure of selling for profit. Liverpool and other local markets were weak and there was little demand for breakbreads for export account, later predictions that a cold wave would pass over a considerable portion of the winter wheat States stimulated buying and reversed shorts hastened to recover the market which had got during the first part of the week.

Both wheat and corn were strengthened by reports that the heavy receipts at Kansas City had brought in as fast as the cars could be delivered.
